Litigation and Regulatory Law

Ed Bedard is an experienced litigator whose practice focuses on representing clients in high-stakes litigation at every level of the federal and state court systems. He has successfully represented clients in numerous class actions and complex commercial disputes involving a variety of issues that pose significant legal and reputational risk. Ed's practice also regularly involves politically sensitive matters that touch on consequential questions of constitutional law.

Prior to joining the Robbins team, Ed practiced on the class-action team of a large international law firm. Ed also served as a judicial clerk to Chief Judge Thomas W. Thrash, Jr. in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia in Atlanta.

Ed is a past-President and current board member of the Federalist Society's Atlanta Young Lawyers Chapter.

Ed is a graduate of the University of Virginia School of Law and Wheaton College.

Prior to law school, Ed served as a Policy Coordinator for leadership in the U.S. House of Representatives in Washington, D.C.
